Andrew's Story

As told by his parents
Peter and Kerry Sargent

Andrew Patrick Sargent
June 30, 1995
to
November 27, 1995

The year 1995 proved to be life altering in so many ways.

As a young couple married less than two years, we welcomed our first son, Andrew Patrick Sargent, on June 30. Like many young couples, we struggled through those early bouts of colic and an unseasonably hot summer, at least by Seattle standards. We welcomed fall as the temperatures cooled, even though the days grew short, and Andrew and I watched the Mariners every night as they clinched their first playoff berth (he didn't understand much but he sure seemed to enjoy it). In November we welcomed Kerry's entire family to our house to celebrate Thanksgiving with the first grandson/nephew in the family. All in all, life was as good as we could have hoped for.

Monday, November 27, 1995, started like many others. We had seen our family to the airport the afternoon before and had tried to settle back into our daily routine. I had gone off to work early as normal. A little later, Kerry dropped Andrew off at his daycare provider Bev's house. We both went about our business at work like so many days before. As the day wound to a close, I left work and headed to Bev's house to pick up Andrew. All seemed so normal. How quickly that changed!

As I pulled up to Bev's house, I was greeted not by little Andrew's captivating, expressive smile and his wonderful daycare provider but by an EMS squad, Snohomish County sheriff deputies and the Fire Department chaplain. Andrew had been put down for his afternoon nap and had not woken up. He passed away in his sleep. Neither Bev nor EMS responders were able to revive him.

The following hours were a blur. I was able to reach Kerry before she left work and broke the news that our precious boy Andrew was dead. One of Kerry's co-workers drove her to Bev's house (she had taken the bus to work in downtown Seattle). For Kerry, the ride home was one of the longest and most excruciating rides of her life. We were interviewed by first responders and comforted by the Fire Department chaplain. They explained how the process worked. They explained that, per county requirements, a death scene investigation would be conducted and, per state law, an autopsy would be performed. We also were put in touch with the SIDS Foundation of Washington. Frankly, we were too numb to process the information given. We would come to understand it all as the days, weeks and months progressed. Finally, a dear, close friend who had arrived a little earlier drove us home to what was suddenly a very cold, quiet, empty house. We were devastated.

The following day, we received a call from the medical examiner's office.

The ME had performed the autopsy that morning and had determined a preliminary cause of death as SIDS, pending results from the standard toxicology tests. We later learned that the ME was a member of the Board of Trustees for the SIDS Foundation of Washington. He had prioritized performing the autopsy and was able to rule out any other cause of death or foul play. While the information would not bring Andrew back, it did provide the first step in processing our loss. We also began receiving relatives back to our house to help in planning for and carrying out Andrew's memorial service. The outpouring of love and support from our family, friends and co-workers was amazing.

We traveled to our hometown of Denver and held a second memorial service there. It was a windy, overcast day. As our family was all gathered around Andrew's casket saying our final prayers and listening to the song that would come to be known affectionately as "Andrew's Song," the wind outside stopped, the clouds parted, and the sun came streaming in through the church's altar window directly upon Andrew's casket. We knew our little boy had arrived in heaven. We also took this as one of many signs we would see, in the months and years to come, that Andrew was still with us. He was laid to rest later that day under a pine tree in a beautiful but tragic area known as the "Guardian Angel" section of Mt. Olivet Cemetery in Wheat Ridge, Colo. As that week drew to a close, we began the long grieving process.

Both Kerry and I took several weeks off work. We returned to Seattle and tried to put our lives back together.

We sought out grief counseling and joined the support group hosted by the SIDS Foundation. We were paired with "grief companions" who had also suffered the loss of child to SIDS. We each worked through our grief, both together and separately, as we came to understand that each person grieves differently. We credit this understanding as one of the reasons we were able to conquer our grief and allow our marriage to remain strong and intact.

As time passed, the pain of Andrew's death began to dull, and we started defining our "new normal." We took a cruise to the Caribbean on the first anniversary of his death as means of celebrating his life (and to escape the gray and rain of Seattle). It was a glorious trip and a wonderful way to get through the first anniversary. In the fall of 1997 we welcomed our subsequent child, Ryan Kelley Sargent, to the family. We call him our healing baby, and he is all that and more. As parents who had lost a child to SIDS, we endured many anxious nights during his first year and perhaps are still a little too protective. Together we got involved with the SIDS Foundation of Washington. We served in different capacities. Kerry became a grief companion for other newly bereaved parents, and I become more and more involved in the operations and leadership of the foundation. A few years later, in the summer of 2003, a work opportunity brought us to Wichita. Our grieving process had largely come full circle. For us, it was a chance to start a new chapter.

It has been a little over 10 years since we moved to Wichita and 18 years since we lost our "Li'l Champ." Upon our arrival, we immersed ourselves in establishing our lives here in Wichita, including our involvement with SIDS Network (now KIDS Network). Since that time, Ryan has flourished in school, and we have found a wonderful group of friends with which to share our lives. We are always amazed at the capacity of friendship and how, even though our friends here never knew Andrew, they are always willing to listen when we need to talk about him and even join in a birthday celebration for a sweet boy in heaven. We still have those bittersweet moments when we wonder how Andrew would have grown up and matured. We would wonder who he might have gone to prom with or whether he would have played on the football team. We wonder where he would have gone off to college this past fall. We never stop missing him, but at times we miss him dearly. With that said, we are so very blessed. So many wonderful things have come from Andrew's death. Of course, we wish he was alive, but we can't change that and have chosen to find the silver lining. Because there is one. We have learned so much about life, about love, about friendship and faith and how important it is to find ways to keep your child's spirit alive and how good this world really is. We also look at all the rewarding experiences and friendships we have made through our involvement with the SIDS community and feel blessed. If we have changed one life, helped one family survive their tragedy, then we have succeeded in keeping Andrew Patrick Sargent's candle burning. All in all, life is as good as we could ever hope for.

Pete, Kerry and Ryan Sargent are participating in Step Up for KIDS in memory of their son and brother, Andrew Sargent.

Network News

Wichita Community Baby Shower for Safe Sleep— Thank you Wichita Black Nurses Association and the March of Dimes for collaborating with the KIDS Network to host a community baby shower on March 1, 2014. Over 185 expectant mothers and their support people were present to learn about safe sleep, prenatal care, preterm labor, pregnancy and infant health. Each expectant mother received a portable crib, SleepSack™ and other information to provide the safest sleep environment for their infants. Our thanks to the various community organizations and stellar volunteers for their generous support for the Community Baby Shower for Safe Sleep.

Governor's Conference On Public Health—The KIDS Network will present, Wrestling with Safe Sleep, at the Governor's Conference on April 30, 2014. The presentation will address how providers educate parents and caregivers about safe sleep practices. Who and what influences them. The workshop will address the tensions of the safe sleep message—pacifier use, sleep position, bed sharing and swaddling. We will discuss the implications of providing a preventative message after a family has experienced infant loss and identify community resources to assist the educational process. Course objectives are as follows: 1) To understand the latest SIDS research and the American Academy of Pediatrics safe sleep recommendations 2) To identify barriers to safe sleep practices 3) To brainstorm messages that promotes the safest sleep environment. To register go to: kpha.us

Candle Light Memorial—Thank you to everyone who participated in the 14th Annual Candle Lighting Memorial, Sunday, December 8, 2013. Over 200 people attended, traveling from all over Kansas and several from neighboring states. We are grateful for the number of volunteers for generously donating their time and energy.

Kingdom Jam CrossRoads Church in Salina, KS

Contemporary Christian Music Festival and KIDS Benefit in memory of Zane D. Bowell

On Sunday, January 12, 2014 at CrossRoads Church, in Salina, KS people gathered to listen to music and support the Kansas Infant Death and SIDS Network. It was fun for the whole family. Thanks to Eric, Melissa, Kerry and Ron Bowell for hosting Kingdom Jam 2014. The Zane Bowell Memorial raised over $1,300 for grief services and SIDS research. There were 12 incredible bands! So many great helpers. Thanks to all the musicians and workers. And thanks to those who gave. Way to go! Already looking forward to Kingdom Jam 2015. Tell your friends what they missed. Invite them to come next year.
